Feb. 1, 1916.

A meeting of the faculty was called at 3:15 Tuesday aft. to consider a matter of discipline.

The circumstances as stated by Mrs. Wadsworth were:

Gertrude Warren and Lucy Belle Dornell had met Earl Goodman and Kirby Bradley in the chapel the preceding Saturday afternoon without the knowledge of any of the faculty and in violation of rules; When at Miss Wendell's request a teacher had gone up to look for them, they concealed themselves; later Lucy Belle left by one stairway and Kirby by the other; Gertrude and Earl remained still longer, neither girl admitted being with the boys until Sunday afternoon when they confessed the whole affair; Lucy Belle claiming that her meeting with Kirby was not pre-arranged. The meeting was adjourned without any decision as to penalty having been reached.

Feb. 2.

The faculty again met, all members present; the following motion was made by Prof. Halbrook: That the two girls be deprived, for an indefinite time of any social privileges; That Earl Goodman be deprived of such privileges, and not be allowed to go to town; that Kirby be required to come & go from school without being allowed to talk with any of the girls outside of his class. Seconded. Carried.

Motion made and seconded that the young people of the two dormitories be allowed to meet in the dining hall every Saturday evening from 7 to 9:30, and be granted social privilege on the campus every Sunday afternoon from 2 to 4:30. Carried.

The meeting was then adjourned.

It was moved that the students of the various departments be required to keep on their own floors during recess and the hour before school. Carried.

On motion the boys were to be informed that the social privileges granted by the faculty at the previous meeting did not include calling in the mission room Sunday afternoon.

March 8, 1916.
3:20 P. M.

A meeting of the faculty was called to consider a matter of discipline. The following facts were laid before the meeting by Mr. Hatcher. Harlan Turner and Carey Scratt had gone, without permission, Saturday night, March 4, to Kitchens; returning Sunday morning they had bought a quart of whiskey on the train and drank it. They had been seen passing through town in a state of intoxication, and Tuesday had been summoned before the officers. Mr. Hatcher had learned of their conduct Sunday morning, and talked with the boys and now called them separately before the faculty.

Harlan Turner admitted everything and promised that he would not drink again while a student in the school. Carey Scratt's attitude was much less satisfactory and gave little evidence of any real appreciation of the wrong he had done.

The meeting was adjourned without any action having been taken.

D. M. C.

March 9.

Faculty met in library. Mr. Hatcher stated that he had talked further with each of the boys; Carey Scratt was called in, and made a very manly statement of his determination to never be guilty again of such an offense and apologized to the faculty.

Harlan Turner made virtually the same statement. Motion that their apology be accepted by the faculty. Carried.

Jack Wellwig's case was next considered; he had been guilty of loafing around down town, of neglecting his work and behaving in a generally unsatisfactory manner.

Motion by Prof. Walbrook that he be deprived of the privilege of going down town, except by special permission, until he should bring up his work in a manner satisfactory to his teachers.

Carried. The meeting then adjourned.

May 11, 1916.

The faculty was called at 3:30 P.M. to consider a matter of very serious import; all teachers present. The facts, already made known to the teachers, which occasioned the meeting were these: Mrs. Hatcher had been informed an hour or so before the time of Commencement exercises, that on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights some girls had stolen out of the dormitory after the lights were out in the building, and had gone with some boys up on the hill side, remaining there until the lights in town had been turned off. Lucy Belle Dornell and Kirby Bradley, Sunday night. Grace Hull and Clayton Morgan, Sunday, Monday & Tuesday. Phebe Bundy and George Nichell Monday and Tuesday. Olin Rose and Roy Holbrook Monday. Olin and Arville Black Tuesday.

Mrs. Hatcher had refused to allow Olin & Kirby to appear with the graduating class, and had called a meeting of the faculty at the earliest possible opportunity to take action in the matter. Mr. Sam Bradley asked the privilege of coming before the faculty, and spoke in behalf of Kirby. Later the three boys (all except Roy H-) came into the meeting; they tried to defend themselves and the girls on the ground that they had been guilty of nothing more serious than a violation of school regulations. The meeting was adjourned at 5:30, called again after supper.

Motion by Mr. H- that the diplomas be granted privately to the two boys; that the girls would not be formally expelled, but would be notified that they could not at any time hereafter enroll as students in any department of the school.

Motion seconded; Carried unanimously.

Meeting adjourned.

Pattie M. Gurnwell, Secy.

A request was made by the faculty that some arrangement be made to secure more wholesome, especially better prepared food for next year than we had in the past.

Meeting adjourned.

Bettie M. Cornwell, Secy.

Also voted that a reading hour be established, from 4-5 P.M., each teacher presiding, one afternoon a week. This, however not to be begun until cold or inclement weather prevented the students from being on the campus. Mr. Hatcher announced that Tuesday would be the day for Faculty meeting until some change was announced.

Oct. 17, 1916.

The faculty met in the library at 3:10 P.M. The question of tardiness and failure on the part of certain pupils to do satisfactory work was discussed. Then Mrs. Hatcher presented a matter of discipline.

Harriet Burroughs and Irene Vaughn had been guilty of disobedience and violation of rules in communicating with boys down town on the lawn and verandah after study hours.

Monday evening the two girls had left chapel, where a rehearsal was going on, with Earl Penn and his friend, had gone down town with them to restaurant; when seen by Mr. Hatcher ran and returned to dormitory. Irene was sent home, not formally expelled but allowed to quietly withdraw.

Harriet had talked with Mrs. Thompson, came before the faculty, expressed deep regret for what she had done, promised that if she were allowed to remain, she would never give any trouble.

The decision in regard to her being allowed to remain in school postponed.

Wednesday 3:15 P.M.

All members present; canvas of faculty showed that some thought she should be retained in school conditionally; others that she should be sent home quietly without formal expulsion.

Then motion was made that she be expelled, no second.

Motion by Mr. Holbrook that she be retained on probation, with a public reprimand.

Seconded by Miss Tandy. Carried, five members of the faculty voting.

Adjournment.

Nov. 28, 1916.

Regular meeting of faculty, all members present
but Miss Williams.

Mrs. Thompson brought up the question of allowing the seniors the privilege of going down town unchaperoned. This privilege had been withdrawn two years ago; since then no seniors in the dormitory.

The principal business was the consideration of an urgent request from Mr. Schwab, the proprietor of the "Cozy", that we give our open session programs of the Literary Societies
on some other evening than Saturday;
the object being that the attendance at the Cozy might not be affected unfavorably
by the attraction of our entertainment.
Motion that we cannot make the desired change, as it would mean the loss of an evening in preparations of school work.

Motion carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

B. M. Brownwell.

December, 12, 1916.

The Faculty met as usual in the library;
Prof. Walbrook not present.

Mr. Hatcher referred to the entertainment last Thursday evening by the Ionian Seniors, stated that we had failed to meet expenses
by about $11.00.

On motion it was decided that we teach Monday of next week, except in the Primary department.

Examinations held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday forenoon, arranged so that each class will be engaged Friday morning.

School re-opens Tuesday, Jan 2, 1917.

Request that December reports give the total enrollment for the term; and the full amount of tuition paid in.

Adjourned.
